What is financial counselling?

Dealing with financial hardship is stressful and can often feel overwhelming. Financial counsellors are qualified professionals who work with you to improve your financial situation. Whether you're having trouble paying the bills or affording basic necessities, struggling with debt, or just want to manage your budget, we can help.

Every person is different, and every situation is unique. Our financial counsellors listen to your concerns to understand your individual circumstances, and partner with you to find the best path to get you back on track.

Financial Counselling Network is a partnership of community service organisations and local government committed to reducing the drivers and impacts of financial hardship.

She could see where I needed to go and made a step-by-step procedure for me so that I wasn't overwhelmed.

How we help

Our financial counsellors provide free, nonjudgmental, respectful, independent and confidential help. They offer advice about your specific financial situation and support to ease the immediate stress, including negotiating with debtors and advocating on your behalf. They can also assist with information and education and refer you to other services.

Our financial counsellors have extensive knowledge and experience dealing with:

- utility stress
- banking and consumer credit law
- debt enforcement
- bankruptcy
- creditor hardship policies
- government concessions

I walked out of there feeling hope in my heart. It lifted me, helped me see my situation clearly and realise there was a solution to this problem.
