Freedom from Family and Domestic Violence

The unacceptably high prevalence of Family and domestic violence continues to increase across the state of Western Australia.

A number of high-profile cases in our state sadly made national news in 2024 and incidents attended by WA Police increased again in 2024 with 42,325 recorded incidents compared to 35,814 in 2023.

More than 1 woman is murdered weekly by a partner or family member in Australia

Gemma's Story

Gemma* was 11 years old when she first came to Young Hearts. She suffered from debilitating anxiety and disturbing flashbacks to the violence she had witnessed in her home. At the time her father was incarcerated for multiple breaches of the Family Violence Restraining Order (FVO) against him.

With Gemma's father almost due for release, her anxiety was increasing. The FVO only protected her mother and did not include Gemma or her siblings.

She shared with her Young Hearts counsellor the fear she felt about seeing her father again and questioned what type of relationship she wanted with him.

Gemma's counsellor focused on creating a safe space for her to talk about all the concerns and worries she had been holding onto.

They worked to establish a Safety Plan, build Gemma's confidence and self-esteem so that she would feel empowered to speak up about her own safety.

Gemma learned and practiced coping strategies to help manage her anxiety and flashbacks.

The Young Hearts' counsellor worked with Gemma's mother, providing parenting support, helping her mum understand how she could help Gemma at home.

As a result of the counselling Gemma experienced significant growth, her anxiety was reduced as were the flashbacks she was experiencing. Her confidence grew, and her willingness to advocate for herself improved. She was able to identify her strengths and know how to access her tools and strategies for when she needed support after her counselling journey finished.

YOUNG HEARTS

Breaking the cycle of family and domestic violence.

Women and children are overwhelmingly the victims of family and domestic violence. The effects on children of witnessing this abuse, or of being victim survivors, can be far reaching. Poor school attendance, a lack of confidence and an inability to make friends, unwanted behaviours, nightmares and more can impact a child in ways that influence them far into their future.

Young Hearts offers free counselling to children and young people up to 18 years of age, as well as vital support for the parents or caregivers of those children. Sadly, the demand for the service across all locations continues to grow.

STANDING TOGETHER

Empowering Students to Lead with Empathy.

Standing Together is Anglicare WA's dynamic school-based program for years 7–12 designed to equip young people with the skills, knowledge, awareness and confidence to navigate real-life issues that matter. Through engaging in-person presentations and/or interactive online learning, students explore topics like healthy relationships, financial literacy and social inequality – all within a safe, supportive environment.

This program helps students:

- Build empathy and emotional intelligence
- Develop practical life skills and confidence
- Reflect on their values and take thoughtful action
- Strengthen their sense of belonging and purpose
- Grow as leaders and active citizens in their communities

Standing Together is more than just a program - it's a way for schools to live out their values of compassion, leadership, and active citizenship.

Students don't just learn about social issues—they take action in ways that are respectful, thoughtful, and empowering.

In 2024/25, Standing Together was delivered across the Metro region as well as the Great Southern and the Pilbara.

Over 174,385 students were engaged in the program, either in person or online.

SCHOOL SLEEP OUT

Engaging our young people through an immersive experience.

The Anglicare WA School Sleep Out is more than just a fundraiser. It's a full immersive experience for the students, as they try to navigate a scenario of a young person who is experiencing homelessness through a variety of activities.

The School Sleep Out is more than simply spending one night in the cold, it is a structured to provide challenges and demonstrate barriers faced by young people sleeping rough, the students who take part leave the event with a deeper understanding of the challenges presented and the ongoing cycle of disadvantage.

Ending Homelessness is Achievable

9,729 people are homeless in WA, up 8% from 2016, with 2,315 people sleeping rough

At Anglicare WA, we believe that ending homelessness is achievable and that safe and secure housing is a human right. Our programs in this space are developed around assisting individuals who are experiencing homelessness or live at risk of homelessness – transition to stable and secure accommodation. Often this is through providing wraparound support that includes mental health care, education and training, and is inspired by the Housing First model.

The service is easily recognised by the Street Connect Bus, which is parked daily in the city with qualified youth workers ready to engage with and offer support and information to young people.

FOYER OXFORD

Helping young people build the good life they seek.

All young people deserve a home, support and a springboard into independent living, learning and work. Foyer Oxford does just that for young people experiencing homelessness.

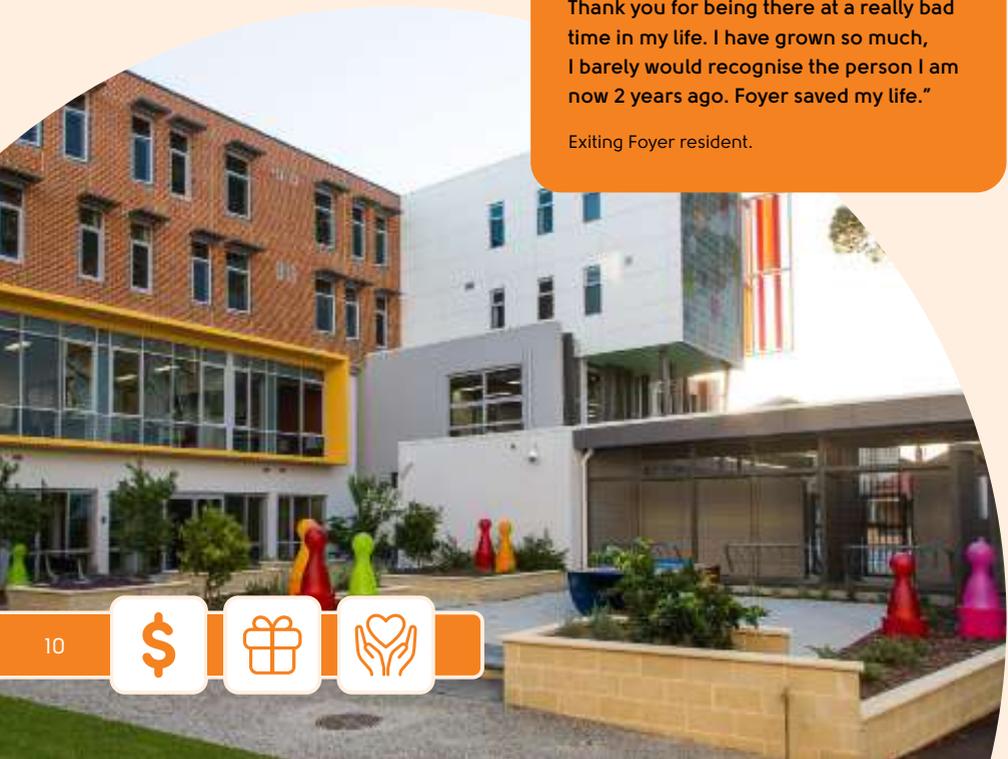

The goal of the Foyer Oxford program is to allow residents to move beyond simply surviving to genuinely thriving.

A huge part of achieving this is ensuring the young person has secure and safe housing after exiting the program and they are supported by sustainable employment.

Thank you for being there at a really bad time in my life. I have grown so much, I barely would recognise the person I am now 2 years ago. Foyer saved my life.”

Thread Together is a national program, with Anglicare WA being the service partner for Western Australia.

A helping hand for those who need it most.

The continuing cost of living crisis and increasing housing costs for both renters and homeowners have pushed many households to the brink and just meeting their basic needs.

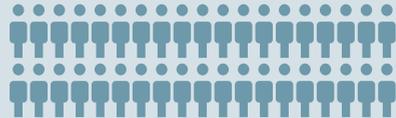

Emergency relief programs provide small yet critical and life changing financial aid. The philanthropic funds may assist with the payment of essential utility bills, providing food for family meals, payments for medical expenses and vital medications as well as travel assistance such as for car registrations and public transport cards.

The support was immediate, given without judgement or questions, practical and just enough to get me through until I can provide for myself.”
